

How To Use The AV Garmin Extension

Bring up ArcView on the PC. From the File menu, choose extensions.

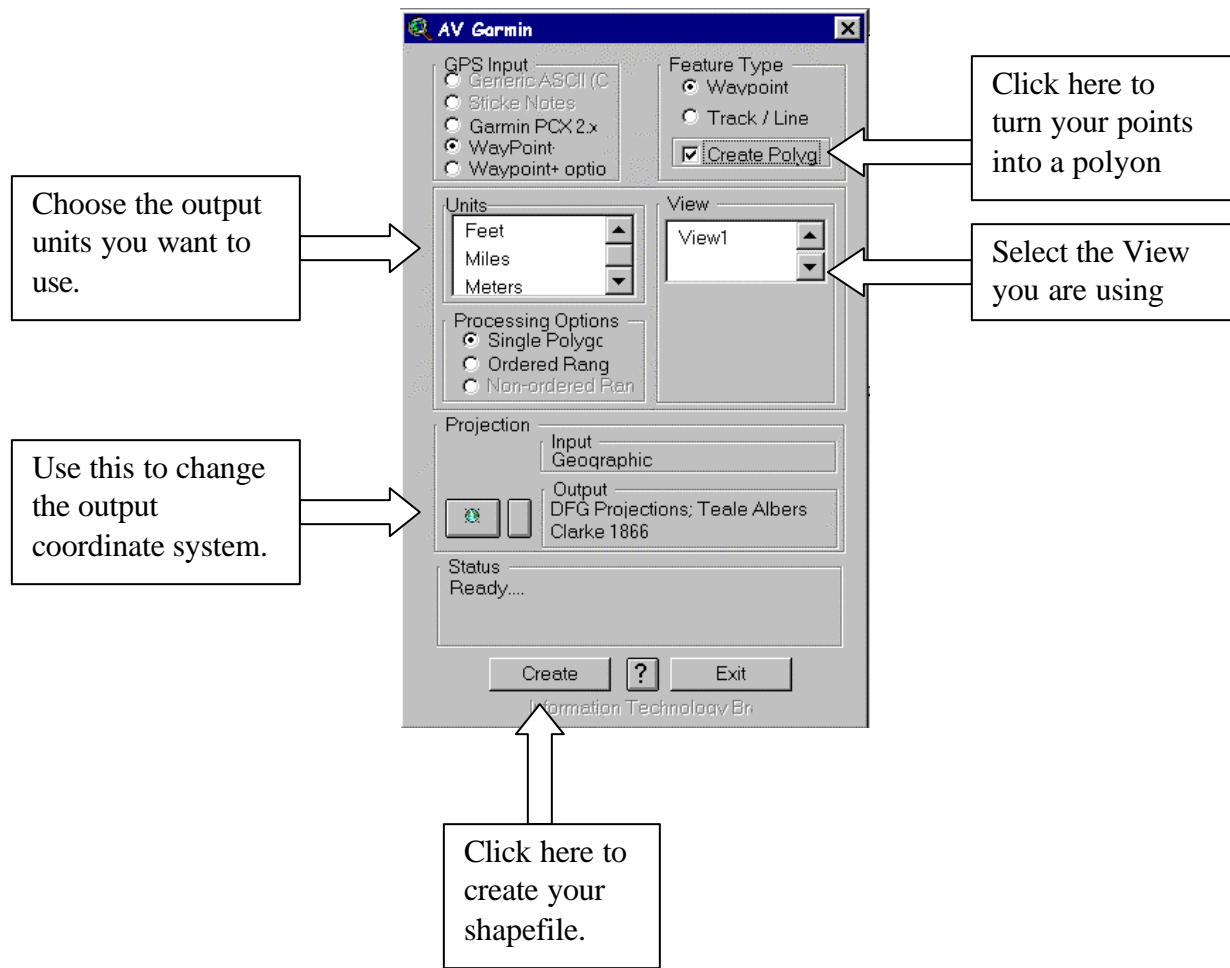

Select the AV Garmin extension and click ok

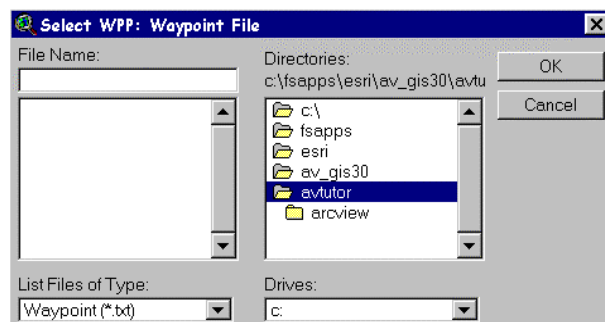

It will load a new button, which will appear on the far right of the other buttons on the tool bar. Also a window will appear telling you about the extension and who developed it as well as the website where you can get the extension and other goodies.

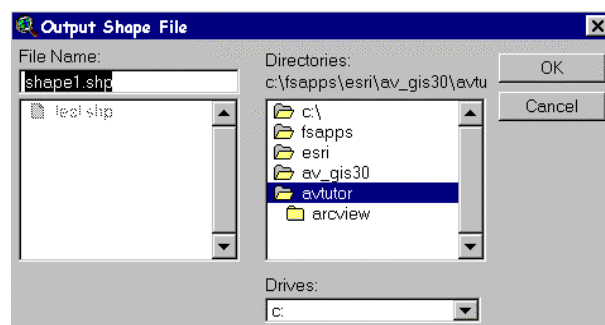

Click on the button and you will get the following screen.

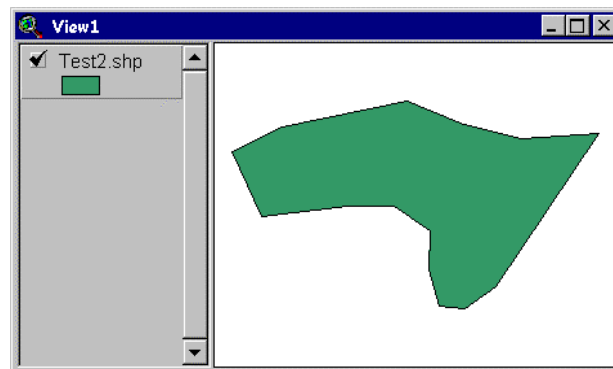

You will then be prompted to select the waypoint file you saved earlier as a comma delimited text file. Navigate to where you saved the file, select it and click ok.

Next you will be prompted to specify a name for your output shapefile and a location to save it.

Once you click ok, your file will be converted and at the same time added to the view you picked earlier. On the AV Garmin window, click exit and you will see your new shapefile added to the view.

You are now ready to add some backdrop like topo maps or other forest data to your view to enhance your map.
